JOHN PHOTIADES NAMED TO ECONOMIC EDUCATION POSTS

MISSOULA--

Dr. John G. Photiades, an assistant professor of economics at the University of Montana in Missoula, has been elected acting executive director of the Montana State Council for Economic Education (MSCEE), a nonprofit organization which upgrades economic education in the state.

Photiades, who was elected to the MSCEE post in Helena Monday, also has been appointed director of the Center for Economic Education (CEE) at UM. The CEE conducts economic workshops in the spring for high school and grade school teachers throughout the state and provides a loan-by-mail service of economic material for the teachers.

"This year the CEE also is planning to have a series of panel discussions on economic issues affecting Montana," Photiades said. "Panelists will include representatives of various business and labor organizations."

As a representative of the MSCEE and the CEE, Photiades will attend the annual meeting of council and center directors of economic education in Atlanta, Ga., Wednesday through Saturday (Oct. 2-5).

Photiades joined the UM faculty in September 1970. He received his bachelor of science degree in business economics at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, in 1965 and his master of arts degree in economics at Columbia University, New York, N.Y., in 1967. The University of Illinois, Urbana, awarded him the doctor of philosophy degree in economics in 1972.
